Entrance to Lambeth Palace. Lambeth Palace has been for 600 years the residence of the Archbishops of Canterbury. The Chapel, built in 1245, is the oldest part of the building. Archbishop Laud placed the oak screen here (seventeenth century), and Archbishop Tait restored the Chapel and filled the windows with stained glass (nineteenth century). The Gate House shown in the picture has two square towers of darkened red brick and a large Tudor archway.
